

Preceptor Updates 2022: Developing Clinical Reasoning and Dealing with Preceptor Burnout

Dr. Bobby Helmer

Recorded Webinar

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Clinical reasoning in pharmacy practice is a commonly used and vitally important skill. Although we expect these skills to develop and strengthen particularly in the experiential education setting, they are often difficult to objectively define, teach, and evaluate among pharmacy learners. It has been described by preceptors as a skill that: “We know it when we see it, we believe that we use it, but we struggle to teach it.” This presentation will provide an overview of the skills and characteristics that play into effective clinical reasoning and discuss practical strategies for preceptors to utilize to help guide, strengthen, and evaluate clinical reasoning skills within their learners.

While student resilience and well-being is a hot topic in the pharmacy education world, pharmacy preceptors are also at a high risk of experiencing burnout. Preceptors at risk for burnout experience less job satisfaction and can develop disinterest in their patient care and precepting responsibilities, which can lead to patient safety issues and diminished learning environments for students. This portion of the presentation will review data highlighting the risks of preceptor burnout, risk factors and assessment tools to identify those at risk for burnout, and describing strategies for managing/preventing preceptor burnout including practical resources.

Following registration, participants will have access to course instructions, updates, presentations, webinar link, program evaluation, CE certificates and credits, etc. This program is approved for 3.0 ACPE Contact Hours, .3 CEUs. Once credit is awarded, transcripts will be available online within 24 hours on the learner’s CPE Monitor profile at <http://nabp.pharmacy/>.

The Office of Alumni and Professional Affairs strongly encourages each participant to check their profile online within 60 days of attendance to ensure credit has been awarded properly. ACPE will not accept CE submissions after 60 days from the live seminar date.

There is no registration fee for this program. This program is not sponsored by an external organization.
